

THURSDAY.....OCTOBER 15, 1885.

NEVADA'S ELECTION NEXT YEAR.

Fortunately for Nevada she is engaged only biennially in a political contest. This is our off year. Yet the people and the press are beginning to lay the groundwork for next year's campaign, when we will have a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Supreme Judge, three District Judges, Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Printing, Surveyor General, Attorney-General and Superintendent of Public Instruction, with Legislative and county officers to elect. It has been and still is intimated from some quarters that the Democratic "sack" is to play an important part in the next political fight. Not only State pride but honor and honesty demand that this mode of getting into office should be frowned down. The voice of the people, not the corrupting and sordid influence of money, should rule. As a State we should try to rid ourselves of the stigma of "The Pocket Borough," by which we are known throughout the land. As a people who are prosperous and desire to continue to prosper we cannot afford to do otherwise than to put forth our best men for each and all of the elective offices. Let both of the two great opposing parties do this, and we will have a better condition of affairs politically and otherwise; we will be in better grace with our sister States; we will receive more consideration from the press of the country; our material interests will command greater attention from abroad, and we can play a more distinguished part in National affairs than we are now doing.

Nevada has been governed and represented too much by those whose interests are not within the State. For officials we should have men who are identified with us, men of the broadest and most intelligent views; men who can conceive and comprehend the elements that are needed to enhance the general welfare of our people. We are now emerging from a condition of depression caused by the millions upon millions that have been produced here being taken from our midst and invested elsewhere, in San Francisco, in various other parts of California, in New York and throughout the great East. Of the many millionaires that Nevada has made but few are now found within her limits other than nominally. It is a sad feature of our political affairs that we look to this class almost solely to represent us in the Senatorial Hall of the United States. The next Legislature will be called upon to elect another Senator. It behoves us to be on the alert and to keep that position out of the market. Wealth is no evidence of statesmanship. If that wealth has been accumulated in the State by aspirants to honor and taken hence, to build up other States, it can be assumed that if we have such men to represent us when questions arise that may affect our interests, they will receive a passing notice because the heart in where the treasure is.

When the next Senatorial contest comes up we trust both parties will present candidates whose homes are in Nevada, who reside here, who have financial and property interests to hold them, whose wealth is not so great as to consume all thoughts as how to best invest it elsewhere, men who can look at Nevada as a State, who can take in and understand the aid she needs from the general government, men who will ask for what is wanted, not only ask but demand it, and stay by the proposition till the relief is granted. We have such men. They are men of brains, men of action, men whose voices would be heard and heeded, men who would attract the attention and command the respect not only of their constituents but of all who follow Congressional proceedings. There are such men in both parties who are actual residents, not constructive. Why not command our self-respect politically, and place one of them in power. Having said this much we will say further that the State is naturally Republican, which has been proven by all legitimate elections, and there is no reason why the next Senator from Nevada should not be a Republican, other than bowing to somebody's gold selling out.

Out of the eleven holdover Senators, only three are Democrats. On joint ballot of the two bodies it will take thirty-one to elect. To assure a Republican Senator, out of the forty Assemblymen and nine Senators to be elected the Republicans will only have to elect 23 members in addition to the holdovers. The counties that are naturally Republican, beyond question, are Esmeralda, Douglas, Ormsby, Storey, Washoe and Eureka. These counties will elect twenty-eight Senators and Assemblymen, which, if all are Republican, will be six more than the required majority. To secure the real political complexion of these several counties is to put up candidates of ability, and whose characters are above reproach. Of the other counties none are clearly Democratic except Humboldt, and that county had one Republican Assemblyman at the last session. Churchill had a Republican Senator and a Democratic Assemblyman; Nye had two Democratic Assemblymen and a Republican Senator; Elko had only one Democratic Assemblyman and one Senator; Lander had three Republican Assemblymen, Lincoln had a Democratic Assemblyman, and White Pine had two Republican Assemblymen. With this showing what has the party to fear? What should it fear? Nevada today has not the transient element she has had for years past. The great bulk of the voters now are bona fide citizens, who have personal interests at stake, who cannot be warped by a few dollars. They vote as their judgment dictates.

If the Republican press of the State will join us and advocate men for the United States Senate, on the grounds of their peculiar fitness for the position rather than for the millions they can command, there can be no question as to the result. The people demand that this should be done, and the material interest of the State is crying out for it louder than the people. In a few days the State will be twenty-one. Let it thereafter be its own master.

THE STATE LANDS.

The action of the Regents raising the price of lands appears to meet with unfavorable comments from nearly all sources, except two-thirds of that body. Messrs. Shaw and Getchell are the two who favor the inappropriation scheme, and it being, as it were, a child of their own begetting, seem loth to let go of their pet idea, which will work badly as against the school and other public interests. The rich and fertile lands of Ohio, Illinois and other States East and West of the Mississippi were sold for a dollar and a quarter per acre. Now, at this late day, it is for Nevada Regents to raise the sterile lands of this State to a price, that will not only bar the sale of lands, but will drive capital from the State.

These gentlemen whose purpose is not to be questioned, but whose judgment has gone awry, must go upon the theory that the people must purchase. Take the available watered lands that are yet on the market, and what do they amount to—comparatively nothing—even if sold at the prices fixed, little is to be made. As a fact the sale of lands has nearly ceased, even on the most favorable terms fixed by the last Legislature since their action.

Mr. Rand, who has had a large and practical financial experience, sees and appreciates the wrong being done the State, and urged at the last meeting the rescinding of the action had at a former meeting; but the voting majority was against him.

The welfare of the State would have been much better served had the Regents taken no action. The land sales were unprecedented, since the favorable terms were offered under the new law. The State was receiving twenty-five dollars for every hundred acres sold to the credit of the school fund, and would receive annually an interest on the same, six dollars, to be sent out to educate the children of the State. All the land sold would be taxed, and thus the burden of taxation under which many moan would be lightened. Yet these promoters of education and State property say by their action the great body of the public land must lay idle, remain unimproved, and thus produce no revenue, but lay open as free pasture lands. The idea, Lake Minerva, leaped forth from some prolific brain, but not matured, nor had it on the aim of practicability, or one approaching it. It is nothing more nor less than an odious monstrosity, which if kept in existence, will be at the expense of the school fund, and the other State and county funds. The gentlemen who advocated it and do advocate it, instead of hedging themselves behind a breastwork of self-importance and saying to the public that we will stand by the record we have made, cost what it may, should start out, gather knowledge from all sources, and especially from those whose duty it is to look after and protect the landed interest of the State and learn what is the best policy, then intelligently act. If they will do this, no sooner than it is done, will they undo their former unfortunate act.

It is now settled there will be a billiard tournament in New York in December, to give the New Yorkers a chance to see Maurice Vignes, champion of France, handle the cue against the American champions, Schaffer, Slossom, Sexton, Daly and Dion.

Richmond S. Dement, of Illinois, was on Monday appointed by the President to be Surveyor-General of the Territory of Utah, and Edmund Shields, of New Mexico, to be register of the Land Office at Las Cruces, N. M.

C. C. Stevenson, whose sack contains a cool million, is talked of as a candidate next Fall for Governor on the Republican ticket. He is eligible until a bigger sack enters the arena.—Scrip-

AT THE PAVILION.

The Magnificent Display the Admiration of All.

The artistic arrangement of exhibits at the Pavilion was completed Tuesday afternoon, and on the evening of that day they were viewed by a large crowd who gathered in the building apparently with the intention of exercising their characteristics of sociability, approbation, criticism, etc. The Pavilion itself has never been more tastefully decorated than the present year. The collection of paintings exceeds that of any previous exhibition, three walls being all hung with the fine works of Nevada's amateur artists. The contributors to the collection presented by the Nevada Woman's Art and Industrial Association have an exceedingly beautiful representation in this line. Miss Theresa Tufty, of Carson, has the most extensive and varied collection. It comprises landscapes in oil and pastels; crayon sketches and water color flower pieces and portraits. The works in pastels, and the marine scenes in oil receive much admiration. The next largest collection is the work of Miss Ollie Bray, of Carson. This consists of flower painting, figures and landscapes in oil, upon panels and plaques. Miss Mamie Davis and Miss Jessie Torreyson, of Carson, also show several studies in oils. The remainder of the pieces in the collection of the above mentioned association is the work of Mrs. Hickson, of Carson, Miss Marsh, of Churchill, Mrs. Witherell, of Carson, Miss Fannie Dorsey, of Carson (who has a specimen of the Lustral painting), Miss Mollie Constantine, of Carson, and Master Eugene Cary, of Carson. The two last named are indeed amateurs. Mollie Constantine is a little girl nine years old; she shows two oil paintings which would do credit to a much older worker. A country school house covered with snow, with childish figures at play thrown in, is the realistic work of Eugene Cary, who is only thirteen years old, and has not yet received any instruction.

The division of the Art Gallery allotted to the West-end of the hall is from the brush of T. F. Laycock. There are about fifty studies, embracing landscape, animal and flower painting in oil; sketches, figures and portraits in crayon, ink and water colors. The central piece, Yosemite Valley, receives its share of attention and criticism. The Reno ladies who are interested in this line of work make quite an extensive exhibit. Mrs. Jenvey has delicate water color portraits. Mrs. John Fulton has two fine landscapes, a snow scene, flower and fruit piece in oil. Mrs. Thyssen a mirror and plaques. Miss Annie McLaughlin has a collection of seventeen copies, all nicely done for so young an artist. Miss Helen Sample has quite a collection, also very creditable. Miss Josie Barnett shows several banners with oil, water colors and Lustral paintings; also two landscapes, plaques and panels in oil. Miss Mary Haydon and the members of her class show considerable work. Mrs. R. H. Lindsey has some samples of her original designs. Mrs. James Stanaway, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Alt and Miss Mamie Carroll have each several pieces. Miss Alice Ede has landscapes in oil and animal sketches and portraits in crayon and pencil. Miss Winters has a collection of fine work consisting of seven landscapes and three flower pieces, all in oil. Miss Darmo, of Truckee, exhibits four large landscapes and two flower panels. Two oil portraits and the very last sketch of Mr. McClellan are shown. Thus are the walls of the Pavilion beautified. This meager notice of the exhibition in the Art Department gives but a faint idea of the worth and beauty of the work displayed.

All the available space in the Pavilion appears to be filled. The dry goods firm of Emrich & Co. have arranged in one corner a display of substantial household goods and ornamental wearings.

C. J. Brookins has an exhibition a variety of church and parlor organs and an upright piano from the now well-known firm of Marshall & Wendell.

F. Koister has a case of finely constructed masculine garments.

Mr. E. C. Leeper occupies considerable space with his attractive display of saddles, harness, buggy robes, indeed all the ornamental and necessary work in horse gear.

The Willow Creek Silver M. Co. fill one corner with an interesting collection of valuable ore specimens. There is a mammoth sample of Kentucky ore, which, although chock full of precious metal, will for visible reasons not be stolen from the Pavilion. The center of the second floor of the Pavilion is used for the display of furniture from the establishment of John Bruner, of Sacramento. All the upholster work is beautiful in color and design. They have many attractive novelties in willow and reed ware. All their lounges, easy chairs, etc., appear more than comfortable to the weary passers-by who are gently requested to keep on passing. The furniture is for sale and owing to the scarcity of sitting down conveniences will perhaps be quite in demand.

The W. C. T. U. has a pleasant corner where thirsty folks can quaff lemonade drawn from a moss-covered well that stands on the borderland of a miniature garden.

The spaces on the walls that are not hung with pictures are decorated with a profusion of picturesque quilts; indeed so numerous in this display that extending the length of the building is a line from which are suspended coverings of all sizes, colors and styles.

As the visitors reach the head of the stairs they are greeted with a very pleasant odor and their eyes rest on a large stand which looks to be made of marble. The floor of it is about five feet square and is composed of square blocks of fine toilet soap set in and colored to represent marble tiles. At each corner four large pillars are set up, on which rest arches that meet in the center and are surmounted by a huge ball, all composed of the same cleansing material. Setting in the center on the tiled floor is a large urn with a piece of drapery thrown loosely over one of the handles. Beyond this a large pyramid is built of boxes and bars of the endless varieties of soaps manufactured by the San Francisco Soap company. This display does credit to Mr. Mulcahy and shows that if all of our business men had taken as much interest in making a fine exhibit as Pat did, Reno's display would have been grand.

Jas. H. Kinkead has invented what looks like a valuable improvement in quartz mills. By the use of a double cam the stamps are made to drop two or three hundred times per minute, by which increased motion power is added to the force of the blow. The inventor claims that a 300-pound stamp will do as much work as the 800-pound stamp now in general use, at much less cost. A model is on exhibition at the Pavilion.

The fruits, wines, flour, corn and honey from Inyo county, California, is one of the finest displays of the kind that has ever been placed in the Pavilion at any of our Fairs, and although it is not within our State it is so near that the soil and climate are the same, and plainly show what the southwestern portion of our sagebrush State is capable of producing when placed under cultivation. The fruits, which comprise several varieties of apples, peaches, pears and grapes, are all extra large, solid and of splendid flavor. Mr. Mulholland, who has charge of Inyo's display, says the exhibit would have been much finer if the Fair had been held a month or six weeks earlier.

Mr. Riley, of Washoe county, also makes a fine display, which is made up of seven varieties of pears, twenty-one varieties of apples, quinces, flowering almonds, tomatoes, honey, fourteen different kinds of bottled fruit and six jars of jellies. It fairly makes one's mouth water to gaze upon the luscious fruit as it is tastefully arranged in the cases, and no one should visit the Pavilion without taking a look through the lower floor of the Pavilion and examining Nevada's products.

The displays of honey are the center of attraction on the first floor, and particularly that of E. A. Moore. He has a large number of one-pound sections, one large case containing twenty-three pounds, one of very fine honey of fourteen, a large display of extra honey in glass jars, and one frame just as it came from the hive and not extracted. Admirers of fine honey should not fail to see this exhibit.

The splendid large ruby silver specimen, weighing about 125 pounds, from the Manhattan mines, Austin, which has been in the Pioneers' cabinet, in Virginia City since its return from the New Orleans exhibition, is in the Pavilion. It has been donated to the State University cabinet, and will remain at Reno after the exhibition at the Fair.

NYE COUNTY MINING.

Courier October 10th.

Mining in Nye County at present is at a very low ebb—not on account of lack of mineral and mineral bearing veins, but rather on account of the worst kind of management. The eyes of nearly all have been closed to this fact as long as any work was being prosecuted that gave employment to the masses; but now that nearly every mining property in the County is shut down the eyes of the people are open and they can see that three-fourths of the mines of Nye have been worked as a stock gamble and not as a business proposition. The dear and easily gullible public have tired of putting up assessments, and the insiders have a decided objection to going down in their pants for the necessary coin to put their badly worked mines on a paying basis.

Years ago, when the fortunes of the County were at the flood, it was easy to get capital to develop a mine, and enough coin was spent in nearly every district to prove the permanency of the mines; but the wise heads who controlled their destinies declared that there was nothing below the grass roots and spent hundreds of thousands of dollars going it blind to open small bunches of ore. The outsiders of San Francisco and New York paid this scientific mining and the people of Nye are now reaping the harvest that has been sown for a long continued number of years by the management of the various mining companies. When it was easy to induce capitalists to put the necessary works and machinery to sink two or three thousand feet the management did not care about sinking, simply because there was more in a stock gamble; now that the dear public have been milked these most intelligent managers and mining men would like to secure the coin to put up heavy machinery for the purpose of going down into the bowels of the earth and proving the permanency of the mines; but capital is shy, and consequently, there is nearly a general closing down—and idleness is king.

The Political Situation in Virginia.

The New York World's special from Richmond says: The Republican party of this State is said to be better organized this fall than ever before, and it is feared the Democrats have relied too much upon their former strength for their own good, and have neglected to secure organization. The colored ministers of the Gospel now throw their full influence in favor of a strict adherence to the Republican party, and Democratic efforts to get any considerable votes will be useless. The Republicans seem to have an abundance of money for campaign purposes. They claim four of the members of the House of Delegates as certain, with only twenty doubtful, and the heavy work of the contest will be for these twenty.

If they capture a majority of these, the Democrats are defeated. The feeling between John S. Barber and John Daniels, both of whom are candidates for the United States Senate, has done the Democratic party harm, and the greatest effort of the party will barely save the State from Mahone. With hard work from now till the election, Lee may be successful by a small majority.
